

October 7, 2008

Announcing the new Startel Messenger powered by CenturiSoft

As a part of Startel's initiative to offer world class solutions to our customers, we are extremely excited to announce that we have formalized an agreement with CenturiSoft to provide the new Startel Messenger.

"The partnership with CenturiSoft provides us with the capability to deploy another best-of-breed application to our clients. Startel will continue to provide robust solutions which will enable our customers to better compete in the marketplace. We will continue to comb the world for the best products in the marketplace to compliment our internally developed applications as a part of our total solution," stated Bill Lane, President.

The Startel Messenger is available in 12, 23 and 46 port configurations. The Startel Messenger provides additional scalability and VoIP solutions to our voice services products. One advantage of the Messenger is that it supports a distributed configuration with a single point of administration and maintenance. In addition, the VoIP built into the Messenger yields huge cost savings.

The new Startel Messenger is an ISO 9001 certified appliance that will be supported by Startel's customer support team. Startel will provide 24x7 level I and II support after the sale. "The addition of the CenturiSoft application assimilates very well into our existing voice services support," stated Sheryl Denny, Vice President.

"The alliance between Startel and CenturiSoft further cements our relationship. We are pleased that Startel will be selling, distributing and supporting CenturiSoft. I wanted to be sure that the infrastructure was in place to provide the same level of support after the sale that we have been providing. Startel's experience supporting voice services will allow me to focus on further product development," stated John Pope, President, CenturiSoft.

The pricing structure for the Startel Messenger is identical to that previously established by CenturiSoft. For more information about the Startel Messenger, please contact your Startel Regional Sales Manager or Dan Feis, Director of Sales, at 949-863-8714.